

The Future of Water in African Cities: Why Waste Water?

By Michael Jacobsen, Michael Webster, Kalanithy Vairavamoorthy

World Bank Publications. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, The Future of Water in African Cities: Why Waste Water?, Michael Jacobsen, Michael Webster, Kalanithy Vairavamoorthy, The objective of this study is to assist public authorities to identify and address the future challenges of urban water supply, sanitation, and flood management in cities. In order to do that, this report uses the conceptual framework of Integrated Urban Water Management (IUWM) as a holistic set of planning and management tools incorporating all components of the urban water cycle to help develop efficient and flexible urban water systems in the future. The Future of Water in African Cities: Why Waste Water? argues that a new approach to urban water management is needed in Africa. Due to their rapid urbanisation, cities in Sub-Saharan Africa will face increasing challenges in order to provide water supply to the growing population. Future water supply for cities will also depend on the potential to sustain water resources of good quality in the river basin and to manage competing uses within the watershed. The complexity of these challenges coupled with future uncertainty due to climate change will require a more sustainable, integrated and adaptive water management approach. Reviewing a...
